ISLAND EXPLORATION

FEBRUARY FISHING REPORT BY MANAGING DIRECTOR, SHELDON SUGA

February is a great time to fish in the Florida Keys. Not only is the weather nicer than just about anywhere in the country (where else can you fish in shorts right now?), but there are a variety of fish to target both in the Atlantic Ocean and out back. Offshore, you can catch dolphin, wahoo, kingfish, black fin tuna, and swordfish. While closer to home the reef should be red hot for snapper, mackerel, grouper, and more. In addition, February is a prime month for catching sailfish. We're expecting a large push of sails to move into the Middle Keys soon, and this has the potential to be a sailfish season to remember!

In the backcountry and Gulf, February offers excellent fishing for redfish, cobia, snook, tarpon, pompano, mackerel, and mangrove snapper. If the water temperatures warm, you could have a shot at catching a trophy bonefish and permit on the flats.

Regardless of the type of fishing you like to do, Hawks Cay has your covered. We have the best collection of offshore and backcountry boats and guides in the Florida Keys, all ready to make your Florida Keys fishing vacation an unforgettable experience. Stop by Hawks Cay Marina to meet our guides, check out today's catch and book a fishing adventure of your own..
